The 17-year-old Italian cotton-clothing brand adored by laid-back L.A. trendsetters has finally come to loosen up NYC, with its first East Coast store. The shop boasts an antique, rustic vibe with exposed-brick walls, blond-hardwood flooring, and wooden cabinets and tables showcasing layer-friendly, flowing tanks ($11–$20), curve-hugging minidresses ($27–$35), off-the-shoulder sweaters ($40–$50) and fitted, high-waisted stretchy skirts ($15–$22). Opt for nonchalant-chic styles such as solid wide-neck, draped knitted sweaters ($53), rough-edged, razorback tanks with silk-screened feathers ($24) and billowing, summery tunics ($39). Brandy Melville on Broadway in SoHo is every girl's dream. Trendy, affordable clothing with a hip vibe and rock feel, teenagers dance around the store screaming over tattered clothing as the bass from the blaring pop music thumps. If you can bear the high-pitched chatter from the young ones, long lines, and rude employees, Brandy Melville is perfect stop for incredibly cheap and stylish tee shirts and accessories. The small SoHo shop features great pieces and vintage décor that may be lost upon its young audience. Old suitcases and fun trinkets surround Brandy Melville's Italian-made apparel. Sheer, distressed, and mid-drift baring tees are the main attraction here, with fun, cropped band shirts from The Kills, Bob Dylan, and about a dozen different Nirvana varieties ($14-$21). Cute blouses are a must here, even if you are well beyond your teen years, namely the Selma Top ($34), Nixie Knit ($53), and Sage Sweater ($48). Other basics include Brandy Melville's denim collection, which doesn't seem like it would fit anyone wearing higher than a size 2. The line of excited shoppers, who are waiting to pay for their new threads, crowds the wall of fashionable accessories. If you can break through the masses, aside from the tees, this wall may make your shopping trip worthwhile. Colorful bracelets ready for stacking were all under $10, while their low hanging necklaces were priced at $10 on average. Shopping at Brandy Melville in SoHo may be a task for some, but the cheap and edgy rewards may make up for the headache you'll leave with. One size fits most. Great prices and fits, take a look at the jewelry. Super cheap and wearable!The currency is displayed in Euros but is actually representative of US dollars. So €8 is actually just $8. Insane line!The so called "store manager" is my new arch nemesis for life. Stay far away!It's like my closet vomited all over this new SoHo store. Love it!One size fits most. Asymmetric flowing style. Great prices.I think it's closed I can't find it anywhere sales clerks refuse to take clothes off the mannequins even if it's the last item in the store!Good prices and great skirts!So much jewelry but too long of a line Racked is no longer publishing. The Commercial Observer reports that the Italian fashion brand with a distinctly Californian flair has shifted in Soho. It moved from its former location at 518 Broadway down to 499 Broadway, which, at 8,000 square feet, is nearly double the size. "It's a phenomenal space with lots of foot traffic," said Alan Napaack of Cushman & Wakefield, who represented the clothing brand in lease negotiations. "This bigger space will be great for them." Brandy Melville also reportedly agreed to rent the space for less than $400 per square foot—a figure well below typical retail rents in the area. The parties involved in the transaction declined to comment on the numbers. This address was formerly home to Swarovski Crystallized.
